JAMAICA PLAIN FRIENDLY SOCIETY

ORGANIZED 1874

INCORPORATED 1901

ANNUAL REPORT

1906 - 1907

JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS.

1907

JAMAICA PLAIN FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

At the end of our thirty-third year we again bring the work of this society to the notice of our friends, hoping, as in the past years, for their interest and co-operation. Through the Case Committee and Visitors one hundred and one cases, representing about three hundred individuals have been in our care. The Treasurer's report will show a larger amount of money expended than in the year before. This is accounted for by our having an unusually large number of sick persons and invalids to care for. Such expenditures, we are sure, must meet the approval of all contributors to the society.

We feared in the spring that we might have to ask our friends for special contributions to enable us to go on through the summer months, but this proved not to be necessary, and we need only now call attention to the small amount remaining in the treasury with which to begin the new year's work.

Several sad cases of tuberculosis have come under our care. Some of these were hopeless, but we were able to do much to make the sufferers more comfortable during their last illness, and to relieve some of the anxiety which comes to the poor at such times, when they are unable to provide any of the little comforts which are so much needed. It is often the wage earner who is stricken with the disease, so the needs of the destitute family must also be provided for, either by our own or other charities.

One interesting case of this sort has been that of a respectable young couple, both victims of this terrible disease. The man had been unable to work for some months when the case was called to our attention by the Social Service Committee of the Massachusetts Hospital, and the last cent was gone. The man proved not to be a subject for Rutland, and it seemed best to help keep the little home going, at least, for a time. A kind relative came in to take one of their rooms in order to help pay the rent, our society supplied milk and eggs, and the St. Vincent de Paul other food. Private individuals also helped as special needs occurred. Then came the development of the disease with the young wife, and very soon the death of the little five months old baby, making the burden seem almost too much to bear. Still, the sympathy and friendliness of visitors could do much to cheer through those dark days, and when the Day Camp for tuberculosis patients opened in June at Mattapan, these two young people were admitted. Through the summer months they made daily visits to this beautiful place, and through the co-operation of friends with our society and the St. Vincent de Paul, the fares were paid, nourishment for night and morning was provided, and the little home has been kept going. There is still great doubt as to the future for these young people, but we cannot regret the expenditure of time and money in such a case, and all that has been done and given has been most truly appreciated.

A good many other families were under our care because of illness and invalidism. Twenty-four on our list were widows, six were deserted wives. In seven cases the need came through intemperance of the head of the family. To thirty-one women our sewing was given, most of this sewing being obtained from different hospitals or institutions which provided the materials. Our small number of visitors, including the case-committee and the agent have been kept very busy investigating and caring for these people. Our annual cry is for more money and more workers. Friendly visits, especially to the invalids and elderly people are very cheering and helpful and, also, the visitor can often do much good by interesting herself in a family of children, learning their characteristics and capabilities, and advising with the parents in regard to their future. With a larger number of visitors we could do much more in these directions, and no one need be overworked. We are sure, also, that such work is not without great satisfaction to those who take it up, even if disappointments and discouragements do come sometimes, as they must in any work.

A very happy and encouraging word has come to us lately from a family for whom a great deal of aid was required a few years ago. The father was then in a lingering consumption, and only one of the children was old enough to work. Our society and kind friends joined their forces to cheer and aid the over-burdened wife and mother, in caring for the invalid and three young boys. One boy was sent to the Farm School for several years with most successful results. Both of the older boys are now in good work in another city, and the mother and younger child have joined them where they can make a comfortable home together. The father did not live to see this happy change, but he realized before his death that he was leaving his family in the care of good friends who would not allow them to suffer. Is it not worth while to spend time and money on such a family, and never to forsake it until it no longer needs our care?

We like to have it remembered that this society is unsectarian, and on the list of our committees and visitors, as well as on the contributors' list, all of our Jamaica Plain churches are represented. We have been fortunate in having an efficient visitor in the Roslindale district, but more helpers are much needed for that district, a part of which comes under our care. Our case-committee and visitors meet one morning each week at Curtis Hall to consult and advise with each other in regard to the families in their care, and to take charge of new applications for aid. We are glad to welcome at these meetings any friends who may wish to learn about our work or to bring any cases of need to our attention.

As these meeting are not always held on the same day each week, it may be well for any who are interested to get the necessary information from our agent, who may be found at the society's room at Curtis Hall every day, from ten to one o'clock, except Saturdays and holidays, from October to May. The agent is ready during those hours, to answer any question in regard to the work, and to receive applications for aid.

Clothing, boots and shoes, especially for children, are always needed, and will be gratefully received at any time at our room.

We thank all who have helped the society in any way, during the past year, and we earnestly ask for a continuance of interest and support from all who live in this district.
